THE WEBSTER TRIAL BEGUN.

GUARDING THE JURY CLOSELY.

OLD EVIDENCE RETOLD-WEBSTER HIMTELF

TESTIFIES AS WELL AS OTHERS. Justice Ingraham evidently does not intend to have any miscarriage of justice in the present trial of Burton C. Webster for the marder of Charles E. Goodwin on August 2, 1891. Whatever the outcome of the present trial may be, he wants the question of Webster's guilt or innocence established without a doubt. Soon after the real trial had been been present after three the real trial had been begun yesterday, after three days of laborious work in getting the jury, Justice Ingraham announced that the jurymen would not be allowed to separate while away from the courtroom. either to their meals or at night. He told them that they would have comfortable quarters at the Astor House and that they might send to their homes for anything which they desired, but they would remain under the charge of an officer.

Assistant District Attorney stapler opened the case for the people by making a short statement of the case which the prosecution expected to prove against Webster. He characterized the act of Webster as a brutal murder, and declared that Goodwin, who was merchant, of all men in the city did not deserve to be shot by this bookmaker. The speaker dwelt for a short time on the alleged relation of man and wife Webster and Evelyn Granville, and said that how she fanned the flame of jealousy between Webster and Goodwin, to feed her sensational vanity, might easily be imagined. But it was absurd for Webster to justify his set by pretending that he was protecting to justify his not by pretending that he was protecting this woman from insult. The plea of self-defence was ridiculous. "Men," he said, "do not go into other people's houses to kill them in self-defence." first witness called was Douglas Smythe, a araughtsman, who made the plans of the Percival flats, which were used to explain the situation to the Following him Mrs. Hannah Wade, who was the housekeeper of the flat in the summer of 1891, took the stand. She said that on the evening of the murder Webster came down states and went out of the door. Before he went out he said to the witness that she had better send for a doctor. asked him if he meant Mrs. Webster's doctor, and he No, any doctor. That man Goodwin is replied: "No, any doctor. That man Goodwin is hurt." A few minutes later she went up stairs and there she saw Dr. Wimmer and Mr. Wade. She helped the physician and her husband lift Goodwin up and put him on the sofa.

The last witness's husband was called next. He went up to Goodwin's room with Dr. Wimmer. remembered that the physician had asked Goodwin remembered that the physician had been replied that how he received the wound, and Goodwin replied that was the remember came to his room and shot him. That was Webster came to his room and shot him. T

Dr. J. S. Wimmer then told his story of being called to attend Goodwin. Goodwin had said to him, in answer to a question: "I was sitting at my desk writing a letter. There was a knock at the door. I to go to the door to answer it and was congot up to go to the door to his wer it and fronted by Webster, who shot me. He must have had a grudge against me."

Dr. Howard G. Taylor, the hospital surgeon; Arthur

H. Goodwin, the brother of the dead man, and Allan Ray, a policeman, were called for the prosecution, and told the stories which they had told on the former told the stories which they had told on the former trial. Mr. Supler then said that the people rested their case. This was at 3:15 yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Howe then made his opening address to the jury, after which he called Fannie Romaine. She told the same story that she had told on the former trial. She said that there was a knock on the door and she got up to answer it, but Webster said that he would go. Goodwin was there, and when the door was partly opened he said: "Oh, it's you, is it!" Then he tried to strike Webster. Whether he succeeded in striking him or not the witness could not tell. Webster witness closed the door for a few seconds and then she and Mrs. Webster went out in the hall and followed Webster. She saw him standing in the doorway of Goodwin's room. Just as they got up to the door went out along the hall, fellowing Goodwin. The Goodwin's room. Just as they got up to the door the witness saw that Goodwin had a cuspidor in his hand, raised, as if in the act of throwing it. Mrs. Webster called out to her husband: "Look out, Burt, be will kill you." The witness then took Mrs Webster back to her room, and just as they were meving away she heard a crash, which she supposed was the cuspidor. A few minutes later Webster came into the room, and, in reply to a question from his wife, said that Goodwin threw a cuspider at him and he had shot him. Then he

Upon cross-examination by Mr. Wellman, the witness got mixed a little, but she stuck to the main points of her story. Webster's wife was then called. She repeated the story which Fannie Romaine had told about the shooting, and then she detailed some of the assaults which, she alleged, Goodwin had made upon her. She said that she had told her husband about them and asked him to move out of the flat, as she was afraid that in her delicate condition she would had counted upon. be seriously injured by the worry caused by the

be seriously injured by the worry caused by the presence of Goodwin. Mr. Stapler cross-examined her. Justice Imraham at this point announced that there would be an evening session, and the court would take an adjournment for an hour.

At the opening of the everifing session Webster took the witness stand and told the story of the shooting substantially as he related it on the former trial. He thoroughly believed that he was in great danger when he shot. He heard his wife's warning cry and dodged his head to avoid the missile which he expected Goodwin would throw; then he pulled his revoiver and fired. He took no aim. When Goodwin fell, he stooped and said: "I'm sorry for this. You brought it upon yourself. I'll go for a doctor."

THEY WANT THE, IMMIGRATION LAWS REVISED. Several important subjects were discussed at the eeting of the Business'Men's Association held at the Sturievant House last evening. The members had something to say about immigration, cholern, and the men who should be placed in the local offices this fall. Here is what they had to say on a resolution about the means that are resorted to to send for liners here:

"Whereas, The false and highly colored statement of life in this country that are issued by ocean and land transportation companies and printed in every language of civilization and scattered broadcast in every hamlet of Europe have resulted in bringing to our shores hordes of people unfit for our eletitzation and unworthy of our citizenship. Their belongings are a memace to public health, and their presence threatens degradation to our laboring masses. Therefore, be it "Resolved, that we instruct our district organizations to request their representatives in Congress to introduce and press for adoption such measures as wil prevent the influx of such unde-irable immigrants, prevent the influx of such underleable immigrants,

"Resolved, that our immigration laws demand revision in the interests of the citizens and aspaters.
That our capacity for assimilation of the crude, of the undouth, the undeveloped and ignorant has r nehed is utmost limit, and that a remedy for this serious evil is imperatively demanded."

Resolutions were also passed regarding the cholera, and it was determined to keep a watchful eye on local nominations and riddly inquire about the candidates named for local offices.

P. H. Spellman presided at the gathering. Twenty-five Assembly districts were represented.

DOING GOOD WORK FOR SEAMEN.

The fourth annual report of the seamen's Christian Association of this city shows that good work for the sailors of this port is being successfully carried on at the mission house, No. 665 Washington-st. The object, of the association is to rescue seamen from lives of degradation, and while caring for them in times of sickness and need, to provide a place for them when in port, where they can spend their time pleasurably and without expense. Sobriety and a quiet submission to the few rules of the mission are the only requirements demanded of any seaman wishes to avail himself of the benefits which the comfortable rooms afford. John McCormack, the missionary of the associa tion, is in charge of the mission, and his long experience among men of this class makes him a most efficient manager. All the various steamship lines have heartfly indorsed the mission, and contribute regularly to its support. The rooms are open daily from 2 p. m. until 10 p. m., and on Tuesday and Friday evenings, known as "good-by" nights, special services are held which include a short address of good advice to those sailing the next day. At the close of the short services, a simple supper is given to the men, and a social hour is spent.

The statement that the various departments of Princeton College were not in full swing on last Wednes Princeton College were not in full swing on last Wednes-day, the day of the formal opening of the college, ow-ing to the absence of a number of the professors who were quarantined at various places in Europe, is mis-leading and incorrect. All the members of the faculty were present except Professor Marquand. All the de-partments are in full strength and the work of the college is fully begun.

AFFAIRS IN BROOKLYN.

CAUGHT GLANDERS FROM A HORSE AND DIED. A strange case was reported from St. Catherine's Hospital, yesterday, Dr. Somerville giving the cause of death in the case of Peter Dillman, as glanders. Dillman is twenty-eight years old, and up to two weeks ago was employed skinning dead animals in the fertilizing factory on Barren Island. It is supposed that he caught the disease from skinning a horse that had died of glanders, and then introduced the poison into his system by scratching a small wound on his head. The first doctor billman went to pronounced the case as one of blood-poisoning, but about ten days ago the man went to St. Catherine's Hospital, where it was at once seen that he had glanders. Speaking of the case to a Tribune reporter yesterday, Dr. Somerville said, "It is the first case of its kind that has come under my observation. disease is common to horses, and men can catch the disease from them, but no other animals are liable

A thorough bacteriological examination will be made of the matter taken from the pastules, so that a com-parison of the germs as found in man may be made with those taken from the horse.

TWO IRREMOVABLE RECTORSHIPS FILLED.

Bishop McDonald filled the irremovable rectorships in St. Peter's and the Assumption Roman Catholic Churches yesterday, by appointing the Rev. John J. Canmer, of St. Malacht's Church, to the former, and the Rev. Nicholas Doran, of Roslyn, to the latter. The pulpit of St. Peter's Church has been vacant since the death of Father Fransioli, Just after his golden the death of Father Fransioli, just after his golden jubilies was celebrated. The parish is large, with 17,000 people in it, and the church is one of the leading ones in the diocese. Father Canmer was formerly assistant in St. Mary's Church in Court-st. He is well known as a musician. Father Doran succeeds the late Vicar-General Keegan, who served the Church of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary for many years, and who was Vicar-General for ten or twelve years before his death. PROCEEDINGS AGAINST A GLUE FACTORY.

Captain Campbell, of the Nineteenth Precinct, made mother raid upon the Peter Cooper Glue Factory Yesterday and arrested seventeen workmen on a charge of boiling bones. The prisoners were taken before Justice Goetting, in the Lee Avenue Police Court, and held for trial on a charge of violating Chapter 646 of the Laws of 1892, which prohibits bones from being boiled within the city limits. Frank F. Williams, superintendent of the factory, bailed out all the men and was himself held on a similar charge. There is another case pending against Mr. Williams, but it is in Justice Walsh's court and is brought by the Corporation of the City of Brooklyn, while the prosecution before Justice Goetting is instigated by Detective Finegan, of the Nineteenth Precinct.

VIEWS OF AN EXPERT ON OSCULATION.

The following treatise on the art of osculation was found carefully copied by typewriter on a slip of paper discovered in a pocketbook lost by a woman, presumably young, on the Bridge promenade yesterday, There was nothing else about the pocketbook to lead to its identification:

"Indulging in kissing to a certain extent is not detrimental to either health or love. We believe that fifty to a hundred kisses during an evening would do no harm. It isn't how often you kiss, but the manner of doing it that works the injury. For instance, there is one known as the 'dweller,' and we could cite several instances where young ladies have been suffocated. and in one instance the young man. There is one case on record where both became unconscious. But taking things all in all, let us by all means liss when and as often as we can. It is far better than cigarette moking, though it may be more expensive, for ice cream, tutti-frutti and caramels must be paid for

DIRECTORS OF A WATER COMPANY ELECTED. The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Long Island Water Supply Company was held at No. 183 Montague-st, yesterlay and the following directors were elected: E. H. Trecartin, James J. from points on their lines. On through business the "Monon" agrees to accept $2 as its proportion between Chicago and the Ohio River. General Pas-senger Agent Ford, of the Pennsylvania lines, is apparently trying to bring matters to a head by extending the demoralization. To this end he has issued a circular announcing that the $3.50 rate from Louisville and Cincinnati to Chicago will be made basis of through rates to points west of Chicago. The effect of this is to cut the rates via this gateway. and so place other gateways at a disadvantage. For example, it reduces the through rate from Cincinnati to Kansas City by way of Chicago to $13 50, as against $15 by way of St. Louis. To this extent the Western roads are drawn into the fight against their own inclinations. The indications to-day are that the Ohio River rates will go lower.

A NEW SUBURBAN LINE IN CHICAGO.

Chicago, Sept. 23 (Special).-The Chicago and Northern Pacific Terminal Railroad Company is completing a new suburban line between the junction of gden-ave, and Twelfth-st, and Blue Island, from where it will subsequently be extended to Harvey. it is known as the Chicago Central, will be opened for business October 1, and in addition to its local benefits as a rapid-transit road for the thousands of residents living in the southwestern part of the city, will furnish the Enlimere and Ohio a new entrance over which all its passenger trains will reach the Grand Central Depot at Fifth-ave, and Harrison-st.

THE NEW-YORK AND LONG BRANCH MORTGAGE. The New-York and Long Branch road has filed a general mortgage of $2,500,000 with the county clerk of Middlesex County, at New-Brunswick, N. The company now has a direct line from Norfolk, Va., to Columbus, Ohio, 707 This line opens the port of Norfolk and South

CONTROL OF THE ARANSAS PASS ROAD.

It is understood that there has been an agreement by which the control of the San Antonio and Aransi Pass Railroad has been acquired by the Southern Pacine Railroad. For some time this disposition of the property has been recognized as inevitable. C. P. Huntington is in the West, and his departure a short time ago has been believed to involve the present transaction. The Aransas Pass road has been lifted ont of the hands of the receiver recently, and there are some detail arrangements to be completed before the Southern Pacific can assume control. The bond holders' committee will meet on October 3, and the "deal" will doubtless be consummated then.

BEAT HIM WITH AN UMBRELLA

AN ANGRY WOMAN POUNDS THE MAN WHOM SHE SAYS INSULTED HER.

In front of the Coleman House last evening a welldressed man who was apparently looking into the window, received a beating with an umbrella in the hands of an intignant woman. When Policeman Hughes came the woman said that the man had in-suited her, and asked the policeman to arrest him. At the Nineteenth Precinct Police Station the man said his name was Louis Morris, that he was a real estate broker, and lived at the Hotel Metropole. The woman who swang the umbrella was Mrs. Theodore Mundorff, the wife of the Coleman House optician sold that the was coming downtown from h nome, No. 203 West Elghtieth st., to visit her husband at his shop. After making a call uptown, she boarded a Broadway car at Forty second-st. Morris was standing at the corner and accosted her, but she took in notice of him. He followed her into the car, and so sotice of him. He followed her into the car, and sai down beside her and began to annoy her with his natentions, she changed her seat, and a few minutes later, she said, shorris stood up near her and acced in a still more objectionable manner. When she left the car at Twenty-eighlust, he spoke to her again, and followed her to the door of her had-and's shop it the Coleman House. She turned around and struck him several times over the head with her unbreils. The man Morris deales the charge made against him and says that Mrs. Standord struck him without provocation. The case will be heard in the Jefferson Market Police Court this morning.

E. & W. A NEW COLLAR. UBIQUE.

Call it what you will, "Alpine" "Tourist," "Fedora," or "Evening Sun"-the ladies - bless 'em! - are adopting it as they did men's summer straw hats.

Men will have it, too; a soft, comfortable hat that satisfies all the demands of fashion is bound to be popular. Black and brown, $2.75 and $3.50. Will some one tell us, please, the origin of the so-called "five dollar derby" superstition? We are trying to upset it with our $3 derby; good as the best. The wearer of a good hat, be he man or boy, needs good clothes, shoes and furnishings; we have them all-ready to wear.
